

Dr. Nadia Hansel is an associate professor of medicine at the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine. Her areas of clinical expertise include allergy and immunology, asthma and chronic obstructive pulmonary disease. Dr. Hansel serves as associate dean for research for Johns Hopkins Medicine and chair of the Johns Hopkins Bayview Scientific Advisory Board. With research interests in genetic and environmental determinants of obstructive airway diseases, she serves as the assistant director for research for the Department of Medicine's pulmonary division and directs the Obstructive Lung Disease Research Group. She earned her M.D. from Harvard Medical School and her Master's in Public Health from the Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Medicine.